STOCES BOUGHT AND SOLD.

April 7, 1877. Gro. B. Hitt. Cashier.

If yesterday had been a day in the declining half of a bitter November, or had ushered in with lion like ferocity a traditional March, the wind would not have been more keen or the clouds upon the Sierra more threatening. (This is written at 5 o'clock P. M. At noon the sun was out and the sky was blue and serene.) What will become of the o'er ven-tursome buds and birds? What will the tulips and the hyacinths and the willow catkins do for shelter and comfort these capricious days and perilous nights? There is a lack of ceremony about the on coming of these squalls which is very disheartmuch less to take precautions agianst their coming. Meantime all self as-surances are obliterated by an omin-ous down-tumbling of the barometer, and umbrellas are in vain.

IN THE CITY. - Col. Harry L. Thorn tou (whom we are always pleased to meet) arrived here yesterday on some sort of hurried errand concern some sort of hurried errand concerning the long drawn suit between the Richmond and Eureka Consolidated. We are glad to note that he looks fresh and fully blessed with health. Hon. C. N. Noteware came down from Genoa yesterday. He and Mrs. N. traveled Bay-wards last night—she to make a visit of some weeks there. there.

In the Supreme Court yesterday, appeared Colonel Davies for the writ and and Attorney-General Kittrell equinet the same in the case of Sheppard Wix-om, a suitor for a certificate of record of the Court in which he was convicted of a certain felonious pro-ceeding and sentenced to the Peniton-tiary. The Court heard arguments pro-and con and took the matter under ad-visement. Wizam sets up that he had no attorney at his trial. Also other gauses for a new hearing.

There is a history attaching to the notice elsewhere appearing, warning municipal tax delinquents of the commencement of suits against them. It is all along of the sharp set watchfulness of Mayor Rice. He overhauled Corporation Counselor Coffin yesterday for not being on hand at the meeting of the Board of Trustees on Mone'ty night; and before the barrist coul clear his throat for an apology, the Descon had him indicted (as it were), for not setting an example of law-abiding, by paying his attorney's license fee. We will bear witness to the promptitude with which the counselor pleaded guilty. (Our venerable co-laborer in the cause of virtue and justice, over the way, will bear corroborative testimony that we are not falsifying the record.) Then, while the successful sidewalk court was holding, up came the City Mar-shal. He averred with an emphasis which was as convincing as it was calm and decorous, that all delinquents, Coffin among the rest, had been duly and repeatedly notified. Finally it was agreed that active operations were needful, that corporate forbearance had ceased to be be a municipal virtue, and that after due notice (as appears elsewhere all delinquents should be made the subject of legal process. Verbun sap.

Not a Varrant.

John Doe (that's near enough even for one of Les Miserables), was bauled up by the inexorable arm of the law yesterday to answer before Mr. Justice Witherell to a charge of vagrancy. Like a wise man reposing confidence in the justness of his fellow countrymen, and fortified by a somewhat imperfect but still active a somewhat imperfect but still active sense of his own zeal in the cause of industry, he demanded a trial by a jury of his peers. Being awarded this Boon, he underwent his trial and was acquitted. It is a funny fact (bordering upon the delicate though it does), that he was cleared by the infallible exactitude of a female book-keeper of a maison de joie! The entries upon the leder joie! The entries upon the ledger and cash book showed conclusively that he was a duly salaried official of the institution. We have long sus-pected that there was, somewhere in the category of the literary situations an offset to the apothegm that Virtue is its own Reward. It is almost too invidious and uncharitable to apply to this one particular case the opposing axiomatic invention that Depravity is its own incurrence; but we are lead to think that such a conclusion is within the range of the vicious possibilities. Mr. Doe having shown that his hands were of an utilitarian the' humbly employed character and description and not hopelessly softened by the demor-alization of an aimless condition of idleness, he was as before said, ac-quitted of the charge.

THE CATHOLIC BALL. Our engagements last night were so pressing that we were compelled to foreintended participation in the joys and excitements of the ball given in aid of the Catholic Church The undersigned will pay the highest price society. We can well believe an enthusiastic and susceptible friend who describes it, in a brief, breath less way, as a superb success. We are proud to think we know some of those to whom he alludes when he speaks in rapturous terms of the gracefulness and the beauty and the elegance of carria, e and the assuring and captivating manners of some of the ladies in attendance. Old blood effervesces as it were young again at the mention of these entrancing de-lights, and one is fain to rebel against the iron of inexorable fate which holds him to the treadmill duties of a dingy office, the humdrum click of types and the mixed odors arising from compositiferous tobacco smoke, midnight oil, damp-ened proofs and the ink preservative of all inks.

> CORRECTING THE TIME. The owners of watches who have been timing the same by Friend's regulator will discover that their watches have suddenly taken to going slow. This apparent difference is caused by the annual or semi-annual, or, per-haps, quarterly resetting of the said haps, quarterly resetting of the said regulator. As many of our readers know, Mr. Friend has a transit instrument at his observatory. With this and other facilities for ascertaining the true meridian he gets the correct time. On Bunday the regulator was set to conform to the solar or siderial time. The difference between the time shown by the clock and that found by instrumental mensuration was about two and a half minutes. The time-pieces at the V. & T. Railway stations, all along the line, have been reset by Mr. Friend's corrected regulator.

The Republicans and Democrate of Virginia City seem to be meeting with difficulties in their attempt to soalesce upon a municipal ticket. coalesce upon a municipal ticket. The appetite for the provend of the public crib stimulated by here and there a losf and there and here a fish, is not likely to be gratified by any assicable commingling upon the terms of a no-party ticket. We trust there will be an azimated contest. The duli stagnation of the times demands agitation, and agitation and coalition or compromise are adverse and irreconciable terms.

Yesterday Mr. Longsbaugh, well knows in this county, came to this office with a letter from a man who signs his name Francis X. O'Brien, and who represents himself as a nephew of the late James B. Mo-Quillan, a well known printer and journalist. Mr. O'Brien represents bimself as one of the typographic craft and as being in great stress from sickness and want of funds. Mr. Longabaugh's story concerning the unfortunate man is that he was discovered in the mountains somewhere onear Monitor, in Alpine county, California, some days since, lost, and well nigh dead from cold. He was well nigh dead from cold. He was taken care of by the persons who found him (sheep herders, we believe), and is now at or near Monitor, destitute and in a most distressing plight. Mr. Longabaugh says O'Brien's feet are terribly frozen, and that he deems it impossible that the right one can be saved, but that it will have to be ampu tated. Not only to the typographical fraternity, but to everybody, this un-fortunate man is an object of charity; and we shall take pains to facilitate the promotion of any scheme which promises him the most speedy and effective relief. We need hardly ask the Nevada and California press to report this story for the good it will do in the way of relief.

Rev. S. H. McGee of the Ashton, Illinois. Christiau church is in jail, charged with killing his wife to marry the daughter of one of his rich parishioners. The girl is 20, pretty, and was engaged when McGee began to pay her special attentions, and he had been in the place but a few months when he was caught kissing the girl at a camp-meeting. His wife, who had borne him two children, was much leved by the people. Latterly she had been having mysterious attacks of ness; and a week or so ago died in spasms, one of her last acts being to throw her arms about her husband's neck and saying, "How can I leave you?" An examination revealed much strychnine in her stomach, and it is proved that the parson bought the the poison of a neighboring druggist and substituted it for the powders left by the physician. Moreover, he at various times before the examination said poison might be found in the stomach, was very anxious to bury his wife inwas very anxious to bury his wife immediately after her death, and was once heard saying to himself, "I wish I had not done it." McGee is a dandified man of 30, and his attention to the girl had broken up her previous engagement, and there is no doubt but that his intention was to marry her and secure the large dowry the father was to give her. One of the peculiarities of the case is that the girl's father sides with the parson and will probably pay the expenses of his trial.
